The Schizophrenia Courses that we have been holding over the last nineteen years are addressed to mental health care professionals. Their objective is still to facilitate the relationship and knowledge between professionals involved in and interested in better understanding and helping these patients.

The Spanish and foreign professors who have been attending our Courses form a part of the most innovating and outstanding national and international vanguard in this field, both due to their practice involvement in new and more extensive pathways of investigation and treatment for these patients as well as their interest in spreading and sharing their experiences and knowledge with us.

The Schizophrenia Course that we hold every year aims to be a place where we can participate, inform, learn, teach, and think about it, a place in which we can communicate and a forum of motivation, interest and enthusiasm for more global views of these problems and more complete and effective therapeutic programs.

This year we continue with the possibility of Poster presentations in the course and thus make the works and research of merit in this field of the professionals from different sites known and we will also extend the intensive, reduced and practical Workshops, as many of those attending have been requested in the evaluation sheets we hand out at the end of the Courses.

We usually hold it in the Hotel Meliá Castilla, because for all of us, the site is a comfortable and convenient site, with hotel services and spaces that will provide us with greater possibilities and facilities to obtain, beyond the Course program, the objectives of our meeting.

Professor Philippa Garety is Professor of Clinical Psychology at the Institute of Psychiatry, King’s College London, a consultant clinical psychologist and Clinical Director and Joint Leader of the Psychosis Clinical Academic Group, South London and Maudsley NHS Foundation Trust. She was awarded her first degree in Philosophy and Psychology (Natural Sciences) by Cambridge University. She qualified as a clinical psychologist in 1981 at the Institute of Psychiatry, and then also completed a PhD on cognitive processes in delusions. Since then, she has combined research with clinical practice and service development. Her main focus of research has been the investigation of cognitive and emotional processes in psychosis, particularly reasoning in delusions, together with pioneering the development and evaluation of CBT for psychosis. Her work continues to translate the findings of theoretical and empirical research into improvements in psychological treatments and service provision. With colleagues, she established one of the first Early Intervention services for people with psychosis (LEO), in the late 1990s. Her recent work is focussed on psychological treatment research, including randomised controlled trials, investigating brief treatments targeted on reasoning and anxiety in paranoia, and therapy adherence and outcome in CBT for psychosis.

Professor Elizabeth Kuipers has completed her Psychology degree at Bristol, her Clinical Psychology training at Birmingham and her PhD at the University of London. She has specialised in the problems of those with psychosis and their families. With colleagues, developed and evaluated, firstly, family interventions, and then individual cognitive behaviour therapy for psychosis. These interventions are both recommended for those with psychosis by NICE (National Institute of Care and Health Excellence). She was Chair of 2 NICE Guideline updates, for Schizophrenia, 2009, and Psychosis and Schizophrenia, 2014. At the Institute of Psychiatry (IOP), King’s College London (KCL), She became a Professor of Clinical Psychology in 1998, and was Head of the Psychology Department from 2006-2012. She also worked as an honorary Consultant Clinical Psychologist in an adult psychosis team at the South London and Maudsley NHS Foundation Trust, until 2012, where she was founding director of PICUP (Psychological interventions for Outpatients with Psychosis. Since 2012, she has led the Women in Science initiative at the IOP, KCL. She has received two Lifetime Achievement awards, from WISE (Women in Science and Engineering) in 2013, and from the British Psychological Society Professional Practice Board in 2014.

Professor Daniel David, Ph.D., is professor of clinical cognitive science at the Babeș-Bolyai University (he holds the Aaron T. Beck Professorship at BBU) as well as an adjunct professor at the Icahn School of Medicine at Mount Sinai in New York. He is also the Director of Research and a Diplomate/Supervisor at the Albert Ellis Institute (AEI). Dr. David is the President/ Director of the International Institute for the Advanced Studies of Psychotherapy and Applied Mental Health, the founding editor of the Journal of Cognitive Behavioral Psychotherapies, and the founding director of the “Babes-Bolyai – PsyTech” Psychological Clinic. He serves as President of the Professional Comission in the Romanian Association of Cognitive and Behavioral Psychotherapies (a national representative in the European Association of Behavioral and Cognitive Therapies). Dr. David’s current research is focused on the role of cognitive mechanisms, both explicit (e.g., autobiographical memory) and implicit (e.g., implicit memory; priming) in generating subjective/emotional (cognition-emotion relation), behavioral, and psycho-physiological human responses, more specifically, on the role of (a) rational/functional and irrational/dysfunctional beliefs and (b) response hopes and/or expectancies on various psychological and medical outcomes related to mental health and cancer. A specific research interest includes the use of technological developments in psychotherapy (i.e., virtual reality therapy; robotherapy). Dr. David has authored and... co-authored numerous books and book chapters, including (1) Rational and irrational beliefs in human functioning and disturbances: Implications for research, theory, and practice (Oxford University Press); (2) Rational emotive behavior therapy. In K. S. Dobson (Ed.), Handbook of cognitive-behavioral therapies (Guilford Press); (3) The cognitive-behavioral model of hypnotherapy. In S.J. Lynn, J.W. Rhue, & I. Kirsch (Eds.), Handbook of clinical hypnosis (American Psychological Association); (4) Rational Emotive Behavior Therapy (REBT); The view of a cognitive psychologist, in W. Dryden (Ed.); Theoretical developments in REBT (Routledge) etc.

Professor Dennis R. Combs is an associate professor of psychology at the University of Texas at Tyler. He is also a licensed clinical psychologist in Texas. Dr. Combs received his PhD in clinical psychology from Louisiana State University. He has held faculty appointments at the University of Texas at Tyler and the University of Tulsa. His research has primarily focused on understanding, characterizing, and remediating the various social cognitive deficits found in schizophrenia and paranoia. Dr. Combs has published over 50 scientific articles in this area and his research has received support from NIMH. Dr. Combs frequently conducts training on working with delusions and paranoia and has written extensively on treatments for paranoia. In 2002, Dr. Combs established the Psychotic Disorders Research Laboratory to promote research and training for students with interests in schizophrenia.
